SharpReading: Get Guided Reading Right for the Beginning Reader: PP-2

About the course

A big part of reading instruction in the early years revolves around the guided reading lesson - small groups for 10-15 minutes a day (if you are lucky). Have you ever questioned what you are actually achieving in that 10-15 minutes? SharpReadings 5 Bits Guided Reading Routine direct from New Zealand is aimed to:

- Truly develop decoding fluency - this approach works!
- Provide a simple, structured experience that creates security for the reader.
- Free up the teacher to monitor the strategies their readers are using and then plan next step teaching.
- Provide for simple, manageable data collection during the lesson.

Highly recommended for the experienced classroom teacher who is looking for a fresh approach to developing decoding fluency, the beginning teacher who needs some structure to get an effective reading program up and running, as well as the relieving teacher who needs a stand alone routine that can be quickly introduced as a one-off in an existing classroom program.

Outcomes

This Stage 1 and 2 SharpReading workshop includes:

- An overview of the SharpReading theory - "What's SHARP about SharpReading", the current research about effective teaching and learning practice.
- A comprehensive practical introduction to the SharpReading routine (The 5 Bits).
- Planning and data collection templates.
- A 25 page workbook that is a working document during the workshop and an invaluable resource afterwards.
- Twelve months access to the video clips from the workshop that model the teaching for review after the event.

This approach can be used with any of your existing reading material. It is not dependent on customised resources.
