Why the SSTUWA is the natural choice for school leaders

For over 100 years the SSTUWA has been the industrial and professional voice of the Western Australian public school teaching profession.

The SSTUWA gives members, including school leaders, a strong voice in the workplace and within the community. We do this by assisting them to gain better pay, improved living standards, safe working environments and employment security through collective bargaining and strength in the workplace.

Significantly, the SSTUWA advocates for the teaching profession and public education, provides development opportunities for members and campaigns for improved opportunities for WA public school students.

The SSTUWA believes that school leaders and teachers are one profession and need a single powerful voice.

SSTUWA school leaders believe that public education is a keystone of a democratic society and work to support, promote and enhance the public education system.
